

September 11, 2001

The horrific terrorist attacks in New York and Washington on September 11th will be with us forever. The massive loss of life is still incomprehensible. And yet the heroism of so many and the generosity of others eases the pain. None of us will ever look at a fire fighter in the same way. So many of the people we serve through their benefit funds have been lost: the hotel and restaurant workers of H.E.R.E., the building service workers of S.E.I.U., the electricians of I.B.E.W. just to name a few. Among the rescue workers, side by side with the firefighters, were so many members of the construction trades, particularly the Iron Workers and Operating Engineers. Healthcare workers fought to save lives in the hospitals while Teamsters drove the remains of the buildings away.

The investment community was also devastated September 11th. Cantor Fitzgerald, Fred Alger, Morgan Stanley and Fiduciary Trust suffered the greatest losses.

Although the official period of mourning has passed, we will never forget those who died and the families that survive them. But now it is time to get back to work.

Exciting New Look for MCG Website

The MCG Website has been under construction for some time now and we are excited to announce its completion. A new look has been underway for the company for some time now and this marks another significant step. We are expecting to go live with it mid-November. We encourage you to have a look as soon as we are up and running. Type in www.marcoconsulting.com and peruse through some of our interesting links and resources. You will find an archive of our past MCG journals as well as a complete staff list and many other interesting MCG facts.
